A Republican State Convention

WILL BE HELD IN GRANITE HALL, AUGUSTA,
Wednesday, June 23, 1880
At 11 o'clock A. M.,

for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor to be supported at the September election, and two candidates for Electors of President and Vice President of the United States, and to transact any other business that may properly come before the Convention.

The basis of representation will be as follows: Each city, town and plantation will be entitled to one delegate and for every seventy five votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1879 an additional delegate, and a fraction of forty votes in excess of seventy five will be accorded a delegate.

The State Committee will be in session in the ante room of the Hall at 9 o'clock, on the morning of the Convention, to receive the credentials of delegates.

For the first time in the history of Maine the attempt was made in 1879 to deprive the people of the right to choose their own officers, and to corruptly continue in power those whom the people had rejected. The authors, abettors and accomplices in this crime against free government are now seeking to come before the people under some new party name—availing themselves of an alias, the common resort of those who seek to escape the responsibility and punishment of their crimes.

Against these men, under whatever name they may appear, all those citizens who condemn the nefarious plot to destroy the rights of suffrage are invited to unite without regard to past party affiliations, to preserve honest Government for the honest people of Maine.

By order of the Republican State Committee

C. A. BOUTELLE,
REED N. DOW,
GEORGE C. WING,
Sub-Committee

J. O. SMITH, Secretary

Mr. Spurgeon is a practical man in the best sense of the phrase. While he declines using the expression attributed to him, "I would vote for the devil if he were a Liberal," he does say that he believes "no man should be made to suffer for his religious opinions, and men of all creeds and no creed have a right to be represented in the House of Commons, if they are numerous enough to return a member." This is apropos of the candidacy of Bradlaugh. The remark attributed to Mr. Spurgeon was sufficiently cautious; for the political status of the devil is well understood—he is a staunch conservative.

MEMORIAL DAY.
Oration Delivered by Rev. E. W. Preble at Norombega Hall.

Comrades, and Ladies and Gentlemen:

Fifteen years ago yesterday, Gen. Sherman, in parting with his noble army said "Our work is done and armed enemies no longer defy us. We have a right to join in the universal joy that fills the land, because the war is over and our government stands vindicated before the world by the joint action of the volunteer armies and navy of the United States. But the glad event was already old to us when these words were uttered, for all great events are old in an hour and young forever.

But a day or two before some of us had witnessed the closing scene in that memorable strife—the end of the bloodiest chapter in American history.

With swelling hearts, we saw the great army of the West, fresh from its march of two thousand miles, through the heart of Rebeldom, under the heroic Sherman, and the veteran army of the Potomac that had so lately poured like a resistless tide through the last defences of the confederacy under the eye of its great Commander, the silent but invincible Grant; we saw these splendid troops, amid the ringing cheers of the Capital, and the enlivening strains of martial airs, carrying above them their rent but astounded and victorious flags, return from the scene of their conflicts and dangers to face their homes and treasures in the North.

It was a magnificent & thrilling sight, and as to day a memory ineffaceable with all who beheld it.

To the Union soldier especially, it was a sight that flooded unbounded satisfaction. A world of sensation was crowded into the moment.

It localized in the whole army, life and experience and all that he had endured and suffered in those fateful years—his hopes, fears, privations, toils and dangers—all these but served to intensify the joy he felt, when he realized that at last the end was reached, and he could once more taste the sweets of home and peace.

But this was not all that grand spectacle revealed to him and which served to quicken the pulses of his heart in that triumphant moment.

The recent and eventful past lifts itself vividly into his memory. Picture after picture, of march, battle and siege, engrave themselves at once upon the retina of his mind. The entire story of that blood stained years, moves like a panorama before his eyes.

There he sees the South, drunken with long political ascendency and maddened by the moral wrong of slavery, lifting its insolent hand to strike down the flag. A white haired old man, the friend of Calhoun, points the gun whose shot crashes against the wall of Fort Sumpter, and awakens the drowsy North, and there under the folds of that insulted emblem of liberty, he seeds the brave Anderson and his eighty men, striking the first daring but unsuccessful blow in its defence. There he sees the North arouse and arm by an electric shock and gathering itself for a terrible contest. Drums are beating, men are mustering from the East and West, regiments are forming, camps are springing up as if under the spell of magic, and everywhere there is the pomp and circumstance of war. There, he sees the mob wrecking its fury on a little band of soldiers, and Union blood flows in a Northern city. There, the campaign opens, and the advance on Richmond begins.

One flag of war like storm breaks out; and the gloom of the first great defeat settles down upon the land. There, a long series of indecisive conflicts, when as the poet says the years seemed to chase each other with wild fear, and the Union cause seemed to be trembling in the equal balances of fate. There, after a long night of terrible suspense and agony the day begins to break, and the shadows to flee away. And there at last where the light falls so radiantly, and the colors are so bright he sees victory descend to wreathe the banners of our arms and crown his efforts with success. And as these historic scenes and incidents flit rapidly before his mind he realizes the imminent peril to which the Nation has been exposed, and patriotically rejoices in her deliverance.
The charging trumpets blow—

They simply say what is false who say our soldiers were not patriots. They loved the country, they were devoted to the Union, and they rejoiced with all their hearts when the old flag with unbroken constellation of stars, emerged from the smoke and fire of the conflict.

It was not mainly from selfish motives that the soldier derived pleasure as he looked upon that receding tide of war. That was another and deeper source of joy to the sentiment of patriotism.

The glorious victorious column told him the war was over, his hardships at an end, and home and dear ones were near, but it told more. It told in tones loud enough to be heard all over the world, that rebellion was crushed, slavery blotted out, and that the United States should be a distinct like the billows, was yet one and the same.

And feeling he had been somewhat instrumental in the achievement of these grand results, the soldier felt he had a peculiar right to join in the universal joy that reigned throughout the land. But that human joy speedily mingled, never perhaps unattended by some softer emotions, and in that bright hour of victory there was a plaintive undertone of sadness and regret, mingled with its happier melodies.

Thousands of the men who went forth with us, vigorous full of the ardor and hopes of manhood were not there to share our happiness.

Every battle field of the South held some of our treasures, and was redeemed by the blood of kindred or friend.

Our generation, comrades, was broken, as a wave is broken on the rocks, by that cruel war.

It is not necessary that I should call the names entered on the silent roll. It is not needful that I should speak of those who, since the war, have broken from our ranks.

From the good President down, the victims of the war may themselves in shadowy ranks before us. It is said it is the custom among the Hindoos, when a man dies away from home, to stretch silken threads across the intervening streams and rivers, so that the loved spirit may return to home and friends.

But we have no need to do this in order to bring our dead back to us. God has placed within us subtler means of communing with them than any we can place without, and over these transit lines of memory and thought, our departed comrades often come to us, or we go to them. We have not forgotten them, or what they did for liberty.

The war is far behind us. Peace has come to smile upon the land. Other duties and occupations occupy our attention, still we cherish their memory.

Prompted by the same sentiment which made itself felt, even in the hour of triumph, we go annually to their graves with a tribute of flowers. And may the day be far distant when this sacred duty shall be disregarded by us.

May we not hope, also, that this beautiful and memorial rite will not end with our lives, but survive the last?

May we not believe that when our hands can no longer perform this loving task, those who come after us will recognize their obligations to the soldier, and in the most fitting and expressive manner, show their gratitude to those who fell in defence of the Union?

'The Czar of Russia, walking one day in the streets of Moscow, saw a rude sledge with a coffin upon it, and drawn by a sturdy woman, moving slowly across the snow. "Whose is it," he said, "that goes to his grave in this manner?" "Only a soldier, sire," was the unfeeling reply. "Only a soldier," musingly said the Czar. "Only a poor and brave Russian. It shall not be. No Russian soldier shall go to an unhonored grave,—move on, I will follow him." And gently lifting his hat and bending reverently his head, he followed the sledge onward through the streets. And as the people who thronged the streets, looked on the sight, they were touched by the reverent example of their great Ruler, and fell silently into the procession—prince and peasant, artisan and clerk, rich and poor, until nearly the whole city came to stand by the humble soldier's grave.

And so I believe it will be with the grave of the Union soldier. It will not be an honored by the future. Impressed by our example, our children will continue the observance of this day, and the generations that follow us will stand as we have stood to-day reverently at his grave.

All the more surely will they do this if we make it a part of the instruction to the young, a teacher to the generation that has come upon the stage since the war, and with whom the war is not a memory and with us but simply a historic event. This in my estimation, is the high office and mission of Decoration Day. It gives us, by its solemnities and its large element of personality, which command respectful and thoughtful attention a grand opportunity to speak of the lessons of the past, the duties of the present and the hopes of the future.

We are not here to-day simply to eulogize the dead. Wordsworth after the death of Burns, gently covered his moral defects with the mantle of charity and said "Silence is a privilege of the grave." A right of the departed, let him therefore who infringes that right by speaking of, or, against those who cannot speak for themselves, take heed that he open not his mouth without a sufficient sanction.

But it is for no such reason that we hesitate to speak of our dead to-night. No country that did not lose honor or liberty on the battle field, has ever lost more in war than ours for she lost many of her most energetic industrious and worthy young men and in the ruddiness of early manhood to duty their loyalty to the Union and their heroism we have the fullest sanction for speaking in praise of their character and deeds.

But the living need in fact no more than the dead need eulogy.

We are here to night principally, to speak to the rising generation, to inculcate in the young the principles for which our fathers fought and fell.

We believe our cause was and is just, we believe the principles they defended are of vital importance, and unless perpetuated our republican form of government will soon pass from the earth. But to perpetuate them we must engrave them upon the minds, yea we must write them in the hearts of our children.

I think, when my boys grow up and begin to be interested in the history of their country, I shall endeavor to fix their attention, most earnestly, on that quarter of a century which closed with the civil war. I shall tell them to thoroughly and conscientiously study the period, to acquaint themselves with the issues to which the development of the moral and political forces and to observe the conduct of parties and men, prior to my thought it is the one critical period in our history. The real battle ground of freedom the only period in which free government has withstood the crucial test of internal strife and civil war. Every young man ought to make that period a study.

Whoever would have settled political convictions, whoever would be above the sway of designing and tricky politicians and seedy beggars for office, whoever would exercise the right of the ballot wisely, justly and patriotically should endeavor to understand that period, for it was in the hot breath of those years that the political characters of the two great parties were forged and the impressions made upon them there will not wear out for generations to come.

Ago, whoever would know the liberty loving men of our past and feel the inspiration of noble example, whoever would honor all brave and true defenders of the Union should also study that period for it is the milky way of our history where the great lights are clustered the thickest and shine the brightest.

There was a battle fought prior to 61. A battle fought, not with sword and cannon, but with pen and tongue, bloodless, but not without its heroic features and its important results.

All through the North there were men moved by love of humanity to wage fearless battle for the right.

The heroes were not all in the ranks of our armies. In the halls of Congress on the platform through the press and from the pulpit. The voice of freedom was often heard, and brave, true men stood forth to resist wrong and oppression.

In my mind to night I associate with equal reverence the names of the moral heroes of that period with the name of the illustrious soldiers that fell upon the battle field. Side by side with the name of McPherson, Sedgwick and Kearney I would write the names of Sumner, Wilson and Greeley and I would put my children to the names with equal pride.

Again who ever would do justice to the causes of the war and its success for the cause of human freedom, studies the period, for then the volcanic forces which finally burst forth in fire and smoke and violent agitation. That are seething just beneath the surface and their swollen beyond their banks are the streams that are to extinguish those volcanic fires. Let us turn our thoughts in this direction for a moment.

The war was the logical result and inevitable outgrowth of every. The doctrine of State rights and secession were, in South and Puritanism and Popery. As truly brothers as Romulus and Remus. They sucked their nourishment from the same wolf and the wolf was slavery.

Slavery soon became a curse upon its own soil and was obliged to emigrate, so it was continually calling for new territory on which to root itself, and it was the constant encroachments of this dark power that called into being, an organized and determined resistance on the part of the North. It threatened to dissolve the Union if it was not unrestricted—if it was not protected in all the National Territories. It endeavored to intimidate the North. It threatened to assassinate our public men. It offered a reward for the heads of Beecher, Greeley, Sumner and Wilson. It put a gag upon free speech and bound conscience. It told us to be silent and not discuss the question of slavery. The North might put her hand to her mouth and her mouth in the dust, but she should not speak.

Slavery could defend itself in Congress and through the pulpit and press, but Northern ideas and principles were to be dumb. Its baneful influence was every where, its nerves run out in all directions. It controlled legislative bodies, papers, parties, pulpits. Ministers did not dare to preach without its license. Politicians did not dare to vote without looking towards the South. Congress did not dare to enact a law without its nod of approval. It demanded that the impulse of humanity should be disregarded and the fugitive slave should be returned. And worse than all, it insisted that the North should invoke upon herself the curse that is pronounced against those who call good evil and evil good. The North was solemnly called upon to declare slavery a moral and political good and nothing short of this was acceptable to the South. But there were those in the North who would not call good evil and evil good,—and the pulpits of our city,—through the manly and noble utterances of Battles, Shepherd, Everett, Harris, Gilman and others, dared to say that Slavery was evil and Freedom good.

Some of you, friends, will remember how these words affected the nerves of Slavery in this Section.

Finally, after dividing the Democratic party, and in accordance with its oath, that it never would accept the nominee of the Republican party as President, on the election of Lincoln, it pushed the South into open rebellion. It was Slavery that brought on the war and that was defeated by the war. It was Slavery that fired upon Fort Sumter. It was Slavery that triumphed at Bull Run. It was Slavery that reeled back from our bayonets at Gettysburg, and it was Slavery that surrendered at the Appomattox.

It was owing to Slavery, also, I believe, that rebellion was overthrown.

It closed its dark record with the act of an inhuman mother who strangles her own offspring. For what was it that put down the rebellion? Two things conquer in war, abundance of resources and superiority of men. In both the North had the advantage and had it because of the non existence of Slavery. In both the South was lacking and the lack was due to the existence of Slavery.

With the bare exception of climate which was more than over balanced by the choice of ground, there was not a dead vantage on the side of the South, that is not directly traceable to that iniquitous system.

If the North had greater resources it was because she was the home of free labor and of the wealth and industry which always move hand in hand with free institutions. If the South was needy in this regard it was because she was the home of the slave, and of the idleness and poverty which ever accompany human bondage. In certain particulars the Northern soldier was confessedly the superior of his antagonist. Not more brave nor more impetu

TUESDAY, JUNE 1, 1880.

THE CONVENTIONS TO-DAY.

Large numbers are gathering in the city to attend the conventions to be held here to-day. The hotels are all well filled, and discussion was very heated yesterday among the different factions. Probably there never was so much need of soothing syrup or some healing remedy. The contest has become so heated that the Little Commercial last night hardly dared say its soul was its own. You hear one set of politicians discuss the question, and judge that no doubt can exist that amalgamation will be brought about. Stumble upon another excited crowd, you find them protesting against fusion. Scarcely a leader in the Democratic or Greenback parties, has staid at home, but is here, either to help on amalgamation or defeat it.

It looks very much as though "Gov." Joseph L. Smith had given up the contest, for he left town yesterday, saying that he must take care of his large drives. It is understood, however, that he left behind in the hands of a confidential friend, a letter to be read to the convention, provided he fails of a nomination by acclamation, taking himself out of the way. He don't want the office enough to go into a contest for it. The Plaisted "boom" was greatly accelerated yesterday, by the fresh arrivals, and there is no mistaking the drift of the current—it is setting strongly towards Gen. Plaisted, whose nomination seems assured. The Democrats have been steadily demanding pledges from Gen Plaisted as to his policy, before consenting to take him upas their candidate; but he has provokingly kept his mouth closed until last night, and then he really didn't say anything.

Music Hall was filled, last evening with the followers of General Plaisted. T. H. Murch presided, and addresses were made by Thomas M. Plaisted of Lincoln, and J. E. Emerson of Pennsylvania, until General Plaisted appeared and was received with applause. He proceeded to address the convention at considerable length. He said if the plain people of the State, to assemble to-morrow, want him as their candidate for Governor he would not feel at liberty to decline. He was willing to work and wait for victory. The people have been crushed down by the money power, and he announced himself a Greenbacker, pure and simple. He said, in substance that he could support neither Blaine or Grant. He would make no pledges but simply asked them to trust to the honor of a man.

The City of Richmond arrived from Portland, at half-past ten, with delegates from York and Cumberland county, accompanied by the Portland Band. Some 400 persons came by the boat, among them the "G. C." club of Portland, a somewhat noted organization, who are here in Plaisted's interest and to advocate local option. It is said that the General favors that measure, though that will weaken him among temperance men.

After the arrival of the boat a second installment of the Music Hall meeting was held. Plaisted repeating his non committal speech, and being followed by John M. Todd, one of his ardent supporters. Solon Chase the father of all the Greenbackers, took the stand, and opposed fusion, saying that on his way to the convention he could easily point out the old bunker Democrats, and these he most soundly denounced.

Prince Albert Sawyer's candidacy is so far out of sight that even Fogg's voice won't reach him, and it seems among the improbabilities that it can be galvanized into life. Nearly all the leaders in the counting out business are on the ground anxious to vindicate, or be vindicated. But some of the delegates object, lone remarking in regard to Fogg that "instead of vindication he deserved damnation." Our reporter interviewed Solon Chase last night, and he appeared to be fiercely opposed to fusion. He said, "I see no disposition to fuse with the Democrats. But if fusion is broached in our convention, I shall have to fight it. We shall have no State's issues to steal, and not a Democratic elector. Them steers have got to pull straight."

This being the case, we do not see anything to prevent the nomination of Gen Plaisted. But it will also prevent fusion if the Democrats mean what they say. They have avered repeatedly that they will not take Plaisted unless they can have three of the seven electors for President, which would seem to be a very reasonable request, but the Greenbackers say, "No, sir, hands off, we will take the seven electors, if you please."

The acknowledged leader in the Democratic Convention will be the Hon. Bion Bradbury of Portland, who imparts to the present canvass something of the fire of his youthful days. He has been willing to make a compromise if an honorable one could be effected. But as he came out from the presence of Gen. Plaisted yesterday afternoon, after an interview, "his eyes they flashed with an inborn fire," and he clutched his cane nervously, and walked rapidly and with elastic step, as though he "meant business." Plaisted won't yield an inch, neither will Bradbury. It is said he will make an elaborate speech from the floor to-day, in favor of hard money and local option, and opposed to fusion. If fusion is rejected, and a separate nomination is made, Mr Bradbury will be nominated as candidate for Governor by reclamation.

Mr. Bradbury is the author of the following resolution, which will be presented

Resolved, That in our judgment the time has come to place the question of local option or prohibition more directly than it has as yet been placed before the people, therefore, we favor submitting the question directly to the people, to be decided by popular vote, at some time other than at a general election.

Another anti liquor law resolution, prepared by Mr Rawson of Bangor, will be offered. It will assert that the amended liquor law passed by the last legislature, is unconstitutional, unjust, and injurious to fruit-growers, and that it shall be immediately repealed. A very mild resolution for Mr. Rawson.

The State committees of both parties held meetings last night to arrange for the organization of their respective conventions. Every county was represented, either by the committee man or a substitute. The Democratic convention will be called to order by E. B. Torry, Esq., of Bath, chairman. Gen. Samuel J. Anderson of Portland, will be nominated as chairman, with the following Secretaries: Willis A. Joy, Ellsworth; S. F. Parcher, Biddeford, Dana Goff, Auburn, Thomas F. Murphy, Augusta. The Greenback convention will be called to order by E. H. Gove of Biddeford, chairman of the State committee, and Hon. John B. Foster will be called to preside over the deliberations. Nothing has been matured in regard to the platforms.

IN HIS GRIP

If Mr. Tabulator Fogg has not a very strong hold upon the affections of the Democratic party, it cannot be denied that he has a pretty firm grip upon their jugular. Last week a Labor Chronicle flourishes the lash over the cringing unfortunates in a manner to do credit to a Southern plantation overseer in the good old Democratic days before the rebellion. Speaking of the count-out, Mr. Fogg says in his paper:

The policy of the count, they must remember, was decided before Mr. Fogg ever saw a return. Two additional members were added to the election committee, of which Mr. Fogg was a member, while he was away in Massachusetts, and without his consent. The returns were placed in the hands of that committee and were opened before Mr. Fogg had returned or seen them.

The advice of counsel had also been sought and several elaborate opinions given in writing, before Mr. Fogg joined the council from Massachusetts. The returns were not only opened and partially tabulated, but advice had been obtained and the party policy worked out without either the advice or consent of Mr. Fogg. That party policy was Democratic. Nearly every counsel who was consulted was Democratic. The leaders of the Democratic party were also consulted.

Here is a full and complete confession of judgment of all that the Republicans have ever charged—that the counting out was determined upon before ever a return was opened, and that the result of the election was in no way to determine the status of the incoming administration.

In another place he says

If there is any body who wants defense and vindication, it is the Democratic party. The policy of the canvass was Democratic policy.

Mr Fogg has never said it was wrong but on the contrary has defended it and is willing to continue to do so. But whether right or wrong, when any Democratic paper wishes to throw mud upon Mr Fogg for his connection with it, he shall soon let that paper know that if anybody needs vindication, it is not Mr Fogg, and also who is responsible for the business, that resulted in a failure.

Fogg's barrel of letters will be more potent than Tilden's barrel of money, in bringing our Maine Democrats up to the rack. It must be admitted that there is something pitiable in their situation. Even the pretence of virtue is denied them and the link of infamy by which they are bound to this gang of political burglars of which Fogg is the voice, if not the brain, is paraded in the sight of all, and like the organ-grinder's monkey the best of them must come down and take his place in the box, at the first twitch of the cord. We have not the slightest doubt but that the leading Democrat of the State, after due deliberation determined to shake off Fogg, and the whole tribe of thieves and go into the campaign with decently clear hands. But like the fatal fungus that fastens itself upon the otherwise healthful plant, and saps its life, Fogg and cohorts are the poison leeches that won't let go, but which are sapping out the life of the party. He holds in his hands the keys of death and of hell as far as the Democratic and Greenback parties are concerned. He may have a treacherous memory, wary and ungirthed, a loathsome ulcer on the body politic, an incendiary and brainless ass he may be—we will admit it all for the sake of argument, but he has a talent for preserving letters. And those letters the Fusionists fear.

If there is any consistency or attainment to principle left in the Democratic party, it will have a chance to show itself at the convention to-day, but as the first manly protest is not to be heard from any body of men assuming to speak for that party, against the attempted outrage upon law and liberty, which Mr Fogg euphoniously calls the policy of the canvass, it is safe to assume that with the fear of further disclosures from the irrepressible Fogg before their eyes, they will, horse, foot and dragoons, take their places in the line from Plaisted down to Bass.

BEARING THE STRUGGLE

Nearly all the special correspondents in Chicago, seem to concur in the opinion that Grant block is winning. Gen Garfield says that it will not do for Don Cameron to attempt to enforce his will against that of a majority of the National Committee. The California and Nevada delegations are on the ground, and are very enthusiastic for Blaine. The Connecticut delegation originally stood right for Washburne, three for Blaine, and one for Edmunds or Grant. Two members of the delegation said Sunday that if the contest lies between Grant and Blaine the vote will be Grant one, Blaine eleven. If between Blaine and Sherman, Blaine nine, Sherman three. The Blaine men, says the Journal correspondent, seem well fortified with the result of their first day's missionary work and have added quite a number of names to their list of certain voters. Six Ohio votes are claimed with certainty for Blaine on the first ballot. The Grant men are muttering in their defensive schemes. There is now every reason to believe that the anti-Grant men will presented a united front in the convention on all preliminary questions, and they will defeat the third-term men.

If the figures made by the Grant managers are accepted, the ex-President will be nominated on the first ballot. Senator Don Cameron made up an estimate Saturday, which he exhibited privately to some of the leading Grant delegates who have already arrived in Chicago, and according to which General Grant will receive 403 votes on the first ballot if the unit rule is broken, and 433 if it is enforced. The Hon. L. P. Morton, who examined the table says it looks to him like a conservative estimate, and he had no doubt that Mr. Cameron honestly expected it to be justified by the vote of the Convention. If Mr. Cameron's table he puts down ten anti Grant votes from each of the States of New York and Pennsylvania. Illinois is claimed as solid for Grant, but New Jersey is conceded to Blaine. The votes of the Southern States Mr. Cameron expects to get pretty solidly for the ex-President. But the canvassing exhibits Grant a liability, in case of nomination, to lose several States, and when this is understood among the delegates, it will be likely to reduce his vote.

The Grant leaders are looking for losses, should the unit rule be broken, which they have not been disposed to admit before now, and a prominent Grant manager admitted Sunday that if the unit rule should be broken lone-half the sixteen votes of Texas now confidently claimed for Grant, would go to Sherman, and that there would be a like break in the Florida delegation. The Ohio delegation will not according to present appearances, be unanimous for Secretary Sherman even on the first ballot, six votes for Blaine are now positively claimed thereon.

The seating of delegates and visitors will be attended to by fifty ushers from the city theatres, assisted by thirty from the Union Veteran Club, four ushers being apportioned to each section. Forces of doorkeepers will be drawn from the Union Veterans. Pages will be furnished from the Western Union and the American Union Telegraph Companies. The general care of the building is in charge of General William E. Strong as Serg't at Arms with twenty assistants. All the employees mentioned above will be under strict orders not to give expression to their feelings by applause or otherwise during the sessions of the Convention or permit their personal preferences to influence their conduct in any way. This rule is to be rigidly enforced.

WILL HE GO BACK ON HIS RECORD?

On the 11th of August, 1875, when Gen. Plaisted was nominated for Congress by the Republicans of this District, he made a speech of acceptance in which he said

"I know, gentlemen, that I am, in full accord with the sentiments of the Republican party. I have voted for it, fought for it, and could no more keep out of it than I could have kept out of the Union army when the enemy fired on the old flag."

By the industry with which he is working for Democratic endorsement, the General should stop and consider whether he is not giving aid and comfort to "the enemy that fired on the old flag." Again, in the same speech, Gen Plaisted used these words

"THE TIME HAS NOT COME WHEN THE COUNTRY DEEMS IT SAFE TO TRUST THE PARTY THAT SOUGHT TO DESTROY THE GOVERNMENT."

That was when the Democrats attempted to destroy the National Government. Since then, they have sought to destroy the State Government. Will Gen. Plaisted explain the logic of his action in the endeavor to place himself in position by the help of that party?

FOR BOUTELLE

The following delegates have been chosen favorably to the nomination of C. A. Boutelle for Congressman.

Parkman—C. N. Rand, S. A. Bozzell.
Abbot—Chas Foss, C. W. Flint, J. W. Greenlief.
Sangerville—D. W. McKechnie, S. M. Gile, W. Danty.

DELEGATES TO THE STATE CONVENTION.—At the Republican caucus held in Sangerville Friday, the 28th, the following persons were elected delegates to the State Convention: E. Jewett, M. Parshley, J. H. Leonard, Parkman—W. S. McCusic, W. H. Smart.

Boston Traveller. And that is what Massachusetts has come to. It is the lore fish-ball of politics. Six sevenths of the Republican party has declared for Grant or Blaine. Of the other one seventh Mr. Sherman has two-thirds. Massachusetts' opinion represents to-day, then, precisely one-third of one-seventh of the Republican party. She is the fraction of a fraction—a decimal put to simple, in the national sum. It was once written of her by one of her poets

"Massachusetts' God forgive her, she's a knee

but to day even this hope flatters her. She is not even "a kneeling with the rest;" for the rest are not kneeling. She is sprawling all alone by herself.—Portland Press.

Reading for children should be selected mainly with a view to interest, and at the same time instruct and improve their minds. Many children are allowed to select their own books for reading without direction from anyone. In such cases story-books of various kinds are generally chosen—many of them of the wildest, most extravagant and sensational sort. Interested in the narrative absorbs all the attention of the child, and he hurries over it in headlong haste, to arrive at the conclusion. Such reading favors the formation of habits of carelessness, hasty inaccuracy, and weakens and enfeebles the mind, besides implanting a morbid taste for sensational reading, and a distaste for instructive books.

Six hundred cabin passengers sailed from New York for Europe, on Saturday.

The venerable editor of the Bangor Commercial says he has long been acquainted with Parson Kalloch, and Kalloch's been growing worse and worse ever since.

The country is just now at its best. The apple blossom is the crown of glory for New England and the crown is now in its most gorgeous estate. Every orchard is redolent with the fragrance of the blossom, and every old scrub of a tree in the swamps and pastures, the waif and astray of the nursery, is clad in the wondrous apparel of the "even year." The grass is green as emerald, and the tints of all kinds are clothed in the richest verdure. There is no pleasanter season for an escape to the country than this.

A Greenbacker said to a Democrat yesterday, "If you don't hold back and let us nominate our man first, we shall kick, and curse up the much we won't look well on paper."

Hon. Thompson H. Murch expressed the opinion yesterday that although he expected to receive a renomination in his District, he thought many of the straight, hard-money Democrats would not support him.

BEN HILL SKETCHED

(Letter to Chicago Times.)

The hate of Hill and Kellogg for each other is so great that it constantly comes to the surface in the Senate proceedings. Ben Hill is at over on the extreme left of the Democratic side. It is the darkest corner of the Senate chamber. Here Hill crouches and stares hungrily at the hated presence of Kellogg, who sits squarely under a bright skylight in the center of the back row of the Republican side. Hill's favorite position is to settle back in his chair until his head is nearly upon a level with the desk, and then rest his pale, cold face in his bony hand. His face is one typical of malice and passion. His face is a dead white in color, with a sublumenary gloom in his pale gray eyes of vindictiveness that is not pleasant. His hair is pale, sandy red. His whiskers are shaved off to the line of the jawbone, and underneath is a beard short, hard and stiff. When Hill parts his thin lips in a smile, he does it only to disclose a set of yellow tusks that look like the fangs of a wild animal. In looking at his action in this personal combat, you can understand how, in the Confederate Senate, his ungovernable passion made him throw a heavy inkstand at Yancey, and then follow up the assault by bending his victim over the back of his chair until the spine received such injuries that Yancey died shortly after.

THE COMING CONVENTION.

CONFERENCE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF CANDIDATES.

An Anti-Grant Man to be Chairman.

EDMUNDS DECLINES TO HAVE HIS NAME USED.

Southern Delegates Objects of Solicitude.

NO GIVING WAY ON THE PART OF ANY CANDIDATE.

Grant and Anti-Grant Mass-Meetings.

DELEGATES AGAINST THE UNIT RULE.

NEW YORK May 31. The Herald's Chicago special says that a conference of the representatives of the three principal candidates for nomination took place last evening and lasted five hours. Those who took part were Conkling and Logan, for Grant; Govs. Dennison and Foster, for Sherman, and Senator Hamlin and W. E. Chandler, for Blaine. The object was to see if all parties could not agree as to the temporary organization.

Conkling, speaking for his associates, avowed the name of the temporary chairman to the anti-Grant men, pledging himself that Cameron would carry out this agreement in good faith. This also explained to an agreement not to move a contest for one named by the committee as temporary chairman. The names of Gov. F. Rice, and ex-Representative Brandegee of Conn., will be proposed to the committee to-night.

After Conkling had pledged his associates to the yielding of the temporary chairman to the anti-Grant men, the representatives of the latter took a list of names submitted by Logan and Cameron and their associates, and they promptly rejected all the names submitted by the Sherman, Blaine men, namely, G. F. Hoar, Mass.; ex-Congressmen Brandegee, of Conn.; and Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, and declared that they would only accept the name of J. Morrison Harris, of Maryland, suggested by Conkling. He was worsted for by the latter as a Sherman man and as against the unit rule.

The Blaine and Sherman men will not agree to him for the reason that for years he had been a Democrat and when a candidate for Governor declared that he owed no allegiance to the Republican party.

Cameron has declared in plain terms to his friends that he would neither obey instructions from the committee nor recognize its power to depose him.

CHICAGO, May 31. A letter has been received by Judge Hoar from Senator Edmunds declining absolutely to allow the use of his name as a candidate for the Presidency. The friends of Grant believe this will help them; while the Vermont delegates although refusing to state who is their second choice will be, say they will not vote for Grant. A Massachusetts delegate said to-day that Edmund's withdrawal would add 20 votes to Sherman's score. Southern delegates have been the objects of solicitude and devoted attention for forty-eight hours past. It is claimed by the Grant men that they have gained in that quarter, which the friends of other candidates refuse to allow. The principal candidates have been very active and very confident, and their friends also, so far as can be learned. There is no saying way in any quarter as yet. A large delegation from Philadelphia, with whom is associated to-day and were received with a band and other demonstrations of welcome. Cincinnati furnished another large delegation, which was received in a like manner. The evening proved to be a fine one and at an early hour large crowds poured from the trains and street cars in order to attend the two meetings on the lake shore. The meeting of Grant's supporters was held on Dearborn Park, and the anti-Grant meeting just across the street. The prominent speakers announced by the Grant meeting were Conkling, Logan, Carpenter, Stewart L. Woodford, Robert J. Lamdin and Stephen A. Douglas, Jr. At the anti-Grant meeting the speakers were Bob Ingersoll, Governor Davis of Maine, Fred Hassadrek of Cincinnati, Wayne McVeigh, Lewis Barker. The Ohio delegation elected ex-Governor Dennison chairman.

The California delegates organized with Frank M. Pixley, Chairman. The delegation decided to vote solid, against the unit rule, and in favor of admitting contesting delegates from Illinois districts. Mr. Pixley was waited on by the Blaine managers, but declined to allow his name to be used as one of five, from whom should be selected a delegate to propose the name of Blaine to the Convention.

CHICAGO, May 31. At the meeting of the National Committee the resolution recognizing the right of delegates to vote individually as they please was sat upon by M. Cameron, Chairman, who refused to entertain it. An appeal was taken, but he refused to put the appeal.

A paper pledging the signers not to vote for Grant on the 1st or other ballots was signed by 22 of the New York delegates to-day. The defection in the Pennsylvania delegation is said by Grant men to be serious. They say not over 4 will refuse to vote as directed by the State Convention while the Blaine men claim 30 who will obey instructions by districts only.

The committee appointed to name a temporary chairman for the convention reported Judge Hoar of Massachusetts, and the report was agreed to without division. A resolution was adopted that should Cameron through any cause be unable to present the name of Mr. Hoar to the convention Mr. Chandler should perform that office.

CHICAGO, May 31. Blaine's friends have selected Hon. James F. Joy of Michigan, to present his name to the convention. New York delegation have selected Roscoe Conkling, chairman.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31. An immense anti-third term meeting was held in the Opera House to-night.

WASHINGTON.

Pension Bill Approved.

WASHINGTON, May 31. The President to-day approved the bill making appropriations for the deficiency in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30. The bill appropriates $8,500,000 for pensions for army invalids, widows, minors and dependents and survivors and widows of the war of 1812; for navy pensioners $25,000, and for arrears of pensions due on claims in which pensions were allowed prior to January 25, 1879 $500,000.

Noted Distiller Arrested.

A telegram was received by the Bureau of Internal Revenue to-day, announcing the arrest of the noted illicit distiller, Berong, his three sons and ten others, engaged in illicit distillation in Northeast Georgia.

THE WEATHER.

WAR DEP'T, OFFICE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER, Washington, D. C., June1—(1 A. M.)

Indications.

For New England: stationary or falling followed by rising barometer; winds mostly from Southwest to Northwest; clear or partly cloudy weather followed by increasing cloudiness and occasional rains.

Decoration Day was observed yesterday many places throughout the country.

FROM CHICAGO!

20,000 ANTI-GRANT MEN IN COUNCIL!

Don Cameron Obstinate

NATIONAL COMMITTEE 29 TO 18 AGAINST HI...

BLAINE'S FRIENDS CONFIDENT OF HIS NOMINATION.

[Special Despatch to the Whig.]

CHICAGO, Ills., May 31. The city is full of people and the hotels are thronged. At the Grant meeting to-night there were but a few thousands. At the anti-Grant meeting there was an immense throng of from 15,000 to 20,000 people in opposition to the third-term. There was intense feeling. The air is full of enthusiasm for Blaine. The third-term syndicate is desperate, Don Cameron seems to have lost his head. This evening he refused to entertain resolutions providing for a temporary organization offered in the National Committee or to put motions to vote. The committee stands twenty-nine to eighteen against Grant and the unit rule, and as the meeting to-morrow morning will depose Cameron if he still refuses to obey the wishes of the committee. Blaine's strength is increasing hourly, and his friends are confident of his nomination.

MAINE NEWS.

Democratic Convention.

PORTLAND, May 31. The Democratic First District Convention this afternoon elected William G. Davis of Portland, and Ephraim C. Spinney of Kittery, delegates to the Cincinnati Convention, with instructions to vote to favor retaining the two-thirds rule. Lewis Pierce of Portland, and Edwin Stone of Kennebunk, were elected alternates.

Fell and Broke His Neck.

Saturday night Frank Brown Fell Haskell, of Cape Elizabeth, eighteen years old, while running across a plough'd field stepped in a blind furrow, fell headlong and broke his neck, killing him instantly.

Decoration at Lewiston.

LEWISTON, May 31. Decoration Day was observed to-day at Lewiston and Auburn. Custer Post escorted by Johnson's Band and Auburn Infantry, marched to Riverside cemetery, where there was a prayer and poem by Rev. T. F. Money, decorating grounds, addresses in the evening at City Hall, Lewiston; oration by Rev. G. W. Haskell, Auburn. Clergymen and lawyers made addresses at Auburn hall.

Death of a Venerable Saint.

WINTHROP, May 31. The venerable Deacon Stephen Sewall, well-known as the father of Sewall, the great anti tobacco agitator, died Sunday morning, aged eighty seven. He was one of our oldest and wealthiest citizens and resided here for over half a century.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS--Second Session.

WASHINGTON, May 31.

House.

The amendment increasing from $275,000 to $300,000 the appropriation for the survey of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts was adopted on a yea and nay vote of 88 to 81. The paragraph appropriating $100,000 for storage of corn was stricken out. Mr. Downey's amendment to pay the appropriation of this bill in lawful silver was agreed to.

The amendment appropriating $650,000 for payment of marshals and their several deputies, except for services of the latter at elections, was agreed to. Other amendments were then agreed to and the bill passed—the negative vote was cast mainly by Republicans.

Mr. Atkins reported back the Legislative, Executive and Judicial appropriation bill with the Senate amendments, with the recommendation that some of the amendments be non-concurred in, was agreed to.

The Senate amendments to the Agricultural appropriation bill were non-concurred in.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the general deficiency bill, but rose without action and adjourned.

CONDENSED DESPATCHES.

At a fire at Springfield Hotel, Montreal midnight of yesterday, three men were injured by suffocation. One had his hand and face also burned. Two servant girls Agnes Cille and Maria Louis Thibadeau jumped from the fourth story windows to the back yard, and one had her leg broken by the fall. She is not expected to live.

The venerable Rev. Dr. Rufus Anderson, a native of North Yarmouth, Me., died in Boston, Sunday; aged 82 years. He was for a long time Foreign Secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions for 34 years, resigning in 1866.

A convict named John Davis sentenced from Essex County for burglary, escaped from the State Prison at Concord, Mass., yesterday, while engaged in sifting sand with four other prisoners, near the Assabet river.

Cook's Canon, Cal., is reported to be full of Indians, and massacres almost hourly occur. There is an absolute reign of terror east of Silver City, and mail communication is suspended.

Chicago Produce Market.

CHICAGO, May 31. Floor is dull. Wheat—No. 2 Spring, 1.11@1.14. Corn is lower—No. 2 37½. Oats lower—No. 2 33½@34. Rye—No. 2, 75. Barley at 78.

THE USE OF ICE WATER. An exchange says: There is no more doubt that drinking ice water too freely, arrests digestion than there is that a refrigerator would arrest perspiration. It drives from the stomach its natural heat, suspends the flow of gastric juice, and shocks and weakens the delicate organs with which it comes in contact. An able writer on human diseases says habitual ice-water drinkers are usually very flabby about the region of the stomach. They complain that their food lies heavily on that patient organ. They taste their dinner for hours after it is bolted. They cultivate the use of stimulants to aid digestion. If they are intelligent, they read on food and what the physiologist has to say about it; how long it takes cabbage and pork and beef and potatoes and other meats and escalents to go through the process of assimilation. They roar at new bread, hot cakes and fried meat, imagining these to have been the cause of their maladies. But the ice water goes down all the same, and finally friends are called in to take a farewell look at one whom a mysterious Providence has called to a clime where, as far as is known, ice water is not used.

LOCAL MATTERS.

June first.

A delightful rain.

Now the farmers are happy.

This might be called Convention Day.

The sun came out hot yesterday afternoon.

The summer hotels will soon be in full blast.

Secure your seats at once for the "Chimes."

The city schools will close on the nineteenth of this month.

The "Gulf" drive arrived at the Argyle Boom Saturday night.

Heliotrope is the fashionable flower for button-hole bouquets now.

Mr. Osgood, city editor of the Portland Argus, arrived in the city last evening.

The tickets for the opera "Chimes of Normandy" met with a good sale yesterday.

Mr. W. A. Waterhouse, of the Maine Standard, is in the city attending the conventions.

Messrs. Robinson & Arey have contracted to make the uniforms for the Union Hose Company.

Geo. W. Gosse, the well-known newspaper man of Portland, is in town to attend the conventions.

Frederick R. Fay, special correspondent of the Portland Press and city editor of the Sunday New Era is in the city.

Messrs Wood, Bishop & Co. have something to say concerning the New Clarion Cooking Range in another column.

Mr. Chas. A. Maxwell, of Portland, the R. W. G. C. of the Good Templars of the world, also a member of the order of the K. of P. is in the city.

An excursion train will be run from Bucksport on Thursday evening to accommodate those wishing to attend the "Chimes," on that evening.

A full attendance of members of Floral Lodge of Good Templars is desired at their meeting this evening, as business of importance is to be transacted.

The Katahdin Iron Furnace closed a remarkable week's work with a product on Saturday last of twenty-one tons, on eighty-one bushels of coal to the ton.

Dr. Laughton left yesterday for New York, to attend the annual meeting of the Medical Association, of which he is a member and to which he is a delegate from the Maine Medical Association.

The Eastern Regiment M. V. M. will be organized as soon as all the companies are mustered in. The Belfast, Rockland and Dover companies are all that remain now to complete the organization.

Telephonic communication was established between the central office in Augusta and the one in Portland, Sunday, a distance of sixty-three miles,—by means of a Western Union wire loaned for one hour.

A special train will leave Portland next Saturday for Chicago, over the Grand Trunk Railroad, for the Greenback Convention. Tickets good for a return trip up to July first nineteen dollars. See advertisement.

A Lewiston wag, who wanted a quick shave, Saturday, placed a vial of ammonia with the stopper out, in his vest pocket and sat down in a barber's chair. The plan succeeded. The tonsorial gentleman didn't make a slow motion during the operation.

Cornelius Heyer, the oldest inhabitant of Waldoboro, died near North Waldoboro, last week at the age of ninety-four years. He was the second son of Conrad Heyer, the first white person born in that town, and who lived to the age of one hundred and six.

William P. Preble, of Portland, clerk of the United States District Court, is preparing an index which will prove of great value to the members of the legal fraternity. It is an alphabetical index giving the name of everybody who went into bankruptcy in the district of Maine under the law of 1867 and amendments thereto.

The Cumberland and York delegations to the convention here to-day, arrived on the steamer City of Richmond at about half-past ten o'clock last night accompanied by a band and a gunner. As near as could be ascertained the delegation numbered about five hundred. They were received at the wharf by the Plaisted faction and Bangor Band.

SERENADE. At the close of the oration at Norombega Hall last evening the Jameson Guards, accompanied by the Bangor Band, marched to the residence of Adjutant R. G. Rollins, M. T. M., on Third street, and tendered him a serenade. After the Band played several selections Mr. Rollins invited them all in and served excellent refreshments.

CITY OF RICHMOND. The steamer City of Richmond went down Portland harbor Saturday on a short trial trip, which proved entirely satisfactory. The steamer has been thoroughly refitted and repainted throughout, elegant new carpets put down and sixteen new state rooms added. She is commanded by Capt. Dennison, whose reputation is second to none as a successful and courteous steamboat man.

NEW BRUNSWICK RAILROAD. This railway along its entire line is being thoroughly renovated, so to speak. Ballast trains have commenced operations, bridges are being repaired and it is the intention of the management to renew the track as fast as necessary with steel rails—five miles of which, now en route from England, are to be laid, it is understood, between Gibson and Spring Hill Station in a few weeks.

PASSENGERS WILL APPRECIATE IT. Superintendent Tucker of the Maine Central, has instituted a rule on his road which will be appreciated by the traveling public. When the train leaves the station the brakeman advances to the centre of each car and distinctly calls the name of the next station. If the place is known by more than one name that fact is also stated, and passengers have abundant time to arrange for leaving the train when they reach their destination.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC. An entire canvass was made yesterday by a committee from the Buskin Club, among the subscribers to the proposed Academy of Music. Considerable opposition was manifested toward the contemplated change of location, and several offered to double their subscriptions if the first site, the Lewis property, on Mainstreet, was retained. A renewed interest seems to be starting up in the matter, and there is a decided unwillingness on the part of our citizens to let the project fall through. Upwards of a thousand dollars was subscribed yesterday, and efforts will be at once made to raise the required amount, so that building may be commenced at an early day. It should be remembered that the construction of such a building would give employment during the summer and fall to a large number of our mechanics. Success to the Bangor Academy of Music!

The copious rains up river have served to put out the fires in the forests.—An extensive fire raged on township 39, Hancock county, which has been extinguished.

CAPSIZED IN THE STORM. On Friday last, off Owl's Head, a tremendous squall came up and struck a schooner of fifty tons measurement and capsized her. The Iris took her in tow and carried her in Owl's Head. She carried a crew of four men and was loaded with canned lobster and produce. At the same time a small schooner of four or five tons was capsized and towed in by a coaster. She had a crew of two men.

THE LAW COURT in session last week, adjourned finally Saturday morning—the shortest term ever held in this district, and probably the shortest ever held in any district, since the court was organized in its present form. Very few cases were argued, and those mostly from Somerset. A large number are to be argued in writing, and several orally at Bangor and Portland, when the courts sit for the Eastern and Western Districts. Of the whole number of civil cases upon the docket, about four-third have been disposed of, or to be more specific, thirty-five out of one hundred and seventeen.—Kennebec Journal.

HYMENEAL. Last evening there was a very pleasant gathering at the residence of Gilman Cram, Esq., on the occasion of the marriage of his daughter, Miss Nellie, to Mr. Charles R. Gould, of the firm of Dole & Gould. The ceremony was happily performed by Rev. S. L. B. Speare, after which the bride and groom received the sincere congratulations of the entire company. The presents were both numerous and beautiful and spoke in glowing terms of the high esteem in which the bride is held by her many friends. Mr. Gould is well known in the city as possessing many excellent qualities and being a thoroughly good fellow withall, and we trust that a bright and happy future is before the newly married pair.

PITTSFIELD ITEMS. Our correspondent writes: On Sunday afternoon Rev. Miss Angell preached an interesting Memorial Sermon before Stephen Davis Post G. A. R.—On Monday appropriate and interesting memorial exercises were conducted by the Post. On account of the muddy roads the procession did not march to the cemetery as intended, but a detachment was sent to decorate the graves of the fallen soldiers. The procession, led by the Newport Band, formed at the Universalist church and marched to M. C. Institute, where the following order of exercises was successfully carried out: dirge, by the Band; Reading of Scriptures and prayer, by Rev. A. Prince; vocal music by a male quartette; calling of Roll of Honor, by Capt. A. Whitten; music by quartette; address, by Rev. J. Boyd; dirge; benediction. The exercises were well arranged and well conducted. The address was replete with patriotic thought and required about three quarters of an hour for its delivery. The music, both vocal and instrumental was pronounced good.

DEATH OF A MAINE MAN. The Marysville, Cal., Times says: Robert C. Pierce, a young man about 23 years of age, died at 10 o'clock, May 16th, at the Western House. The deceased has been a resident of this city for some four months past, and during that time was in the employ of Mr. Dugall, a dry goods merchant on D street. His death was the result of but a few days' sickness from obscure brain trouble accompanied by typhoid condition. We called upon Mr. Dugall this morning and from him we learn that Mr. Pierce was a young man of good morals, temperate at all times and industrious. He was well and favorably known to the customers of Mr. Dugall's store as an accomplished salesman, a thorough gentleman and with whom it was a pleasure to have dealings. A large envelope enclosing a cabinet picture, was found in the clothing of Mr. Pierce, sealed and addressed to Mr. Freeman Y. Pierce, Abbot Village, Maine, at which place, no doubt, a father, mother, sister and brother will receive to-day one of the most (to them) heart rending messages ever wired across the continent.

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

Sixtieth Anniversary of the Rhetorical Society.

The exercises of the Rhetorical Society were held last evening in the Hammond Street church, and were heard with great interest by the large audience. After an impressive prayer by Rev. Dr. Taphan, and music by the Central church choir, the President introduced William Elder Archibald as the first speaker. Mr. Archibald gave a graphic account of Ancient Materialism as compared with Modern, and made the subject very clear to his audience.

Mr. Hackett followed with a thoughtful oration on Missionary Enterprise and its results in all lands and times, and in a very happy manner brought the wonderful facts forward, keeping the attention of his hearers to the close.

Miss Cook followed and sang "the Nightingale's Song," in which she even surpassed her former efforts.

The oration by Mr. Rand was an earnest plea for moral wisdom as opposed to mere knowledge and the characteristic "smartness" of the American people, and allowing perhaps that the subject was less interesting in itself, Mr. Rand deserves great credit for the thought expended upon it, and the amount of interest that he compelled his listners to feel in it.

The oration of Mr. Hawes was a brilliant essay on the dangers to be feared from the Jesuit rule, and was perhaps the most interesting in itself. Owing to the rapid delivery some parts were lost, but all things considered Mr. Hawes may congratulate himself on the success of his oration and the pleasing impression left upon the audience.

The exercises closed by a duet, "Farewell," by Mr. Haynes and Miss Cook. The choir was certainly never in better voice and the music throughout was a rich treat.

The orations all showed earnest work and the Society may well feel pleased with the success of its 60th anniversary.

The exercises for the remainder of the week are as follows:

MEMORIAL DAY.

Decorating The Graves of Our Fallen Heroes.

THE SERVICES AT MT. HOPE, BREWER AND BIRCH HILL.

At Norombega Hall---The Oration and Roll of Honor.

The weather yesterday was rather unfavorable for the observance of Memorial Day, as the rain which set in Sunday afternoon, continued all the morning without intermission, falling in perfect torrents] a portion of the time. This of course interfered with the order of exercises somewhat, and prevented many from attending the services, but the programme was carried out with a few changes. We give below a full report of the proceedings in this city and vicinity, commencing with the exercises in North Brewer, Sunday:

AT BREWER SUNDAY AND MONDAY.

The members of the Brewer Memorial Association, commanded by Capt. S. H. Downs, visited the cemetery at North Brewer, Sunday afternoon. After decorating the graves of the honored dead, on account of the storm, they proceeded to the school house and finished the exercises, which consisted of prayer and fitting and impressive remarks by Rev. A. S. Townsend, of Brewer, and singing by the Quartette, Mr. E. Currier, bass; Mr. M. Mahan, tenor; Miss Nellie Kerr, soprano; Miss Annie Kerr, alto. The singing was pronounced very fine by all present.

In the evening the Association, under command of the President, Col. Hutchings, marched to the Congregational church, where Rev. R. L. Howard, of this city, delivered an able Memorial Sermon.

At a few minutes before nine o'clock yesterday morning, a detachment from Beal Post No. 12, under command of Major W. Z. Clayton, the Jameson Guards under command of Lieut. Collins and the Bangor Band, marched to Brewer where the procession was formed in front of the Town Hall, as follows:

Bangor Cornet Band—M. H. Andrews, Leader.
Marshal, S. H. Stone.
Aids, S. H. Downes and G. W. Dickerson.
Jameson Guards, Commanded by Lieut. Charles Collins.
B. H. Beale Post G. A. R. of Bangor, Commanded by Major W. Z. Clayton.
Brewer Memorial Association.

The procession then marched to the cemetery, passing under the arch with arms reversed, and formed a square around the monument.

Rev. C. A. Beckwith invoked the Divine blessing, after which the graves of the honored dead were decorated by the Memorial Association, the Band playing a dirge while the impressive ceremony was being performed. The falling rain added solemnity to the occasion as it suggested the thought that even the heavens were weeping in honor of the noble dead, who willingly sacrificed their lives that the Union might be preserved. The Roll of Honor, numbering about seventy-five names, was then read by Capt. S. H. Downs, and the exercises closed with the benediction by Rev. Mr. Townsend. The line was then formed again and marched back to this city.

AT BIRCH HILL.

A detachment from Beal Post under command of Col. C. V. Crossman and headed by the St. John's Band also went to Birch Hill. Here the graves were decorated by the comrades while the Band played an appropriate selection. On their return from the cemetery the detachment marched up in front of the Children's Home, which contains some soldiers' orphans, and the Band played several selections to the great gratification of the little inmates.

AT THE HALL.

When the members of the Post returned to Grand Army Hall they found a warm fire which felt decidedly comfortable, as many of them who were unprovided with rubber coats were thoroughly drenched. A collation had been prepared for the Coburn Cadets, but as they were not present on account of the rain, the members of the Post took their dinner at the Hall.

AFTERNOON—SERVICES AT MT. HOPE.

At one time it was thought that it would be expedient to omit the regular exercises at Mt. Hope on account of the weather, and merely send a detatchment up to decorate the graves, but after some deliberation it was finally decided to carry out the programme as previously arranged, with some changes. The attendance at the cemetery was not near as large this year as last, the people being afraid that it was going to rain again in the afternoon.

The line was formed on Broadway, the right resting on State street, in the following order:

Bangor Cornet Band.
Marshal, A. B. Peaslee.
Aids, E. Small, R. F. Peaslee, S. A. Hapworth, Geo M. Fletcher, Edward Jordan, W. A. Dole.
Jameson Guards.
B. H. Beale Post No. 12, G. A. R. Bangor.
Daniel White Post No. 10, G. A. R. Kenduskeag.

The procession than moved over the following route: Up Broadway to Somerset, to French, to State, to Kenduskeag bridge, to Main, to Union, to Front street, where the cars for Mt. Hope Cemetery were taken.

After disembarking from the cars the line was again formed and marched into the cemetery, forming a square about the monument, which was very handsomely trimmed with wreaths and garlands of flowers. The Band then played a dirge, after which the monument was decorated, introducing [a new and very pretty feature, adopted from the Massachusetts ritual as follows:

Major Clayton advanced from the centre of the north front, and taking a bouquet from the receptacle, placed it upon a grave and said:

"In memory of the honored and heroic dead, whose remains here find shelter and repose, I deposit these flowers. May the lesson of purity which they symbolize rest in our hearts and incite in us the emotions of patriotism, which they exemplified in life and in death."

Col. Crossman advanced from the centre of the east front, and placed flowers upon a grave, and said:

"In honor of our comrades slain in freedom's battles, or dying from wounds received in defence of all we hold most dear, I place these flowers upon this grave. The green turf above them will fade; these beautiful flowers will wither and die, but the lesson will remain, and our children and their children will be taught the duty of honoring those who died for their country."

Col. Farnham advanced from the centre of the south front, and placing flowers upon a grave, said:

"Death comes to us all; none shall escape his relentless mandate. The highest potentate and the humblest toiler must at last take their places in the, bosom of the earth, and it becomes us all to be ready for the messenger whose summons we must obey. Our comrades, upon whose graves we scatter flowers, and whose memories we thus revive and celebrate, died in the performance of the noblest of duties, and met the destroyer where every patriot would desire to meet him, beneath the folds of our starry banner, and in defence of that cause in which it is sweet and pleasant to die—the cause of our country. As the grass will spring anew from the ashes and death of winter, as other flowers will come forth to take the place of these so soon to fade, so be it ours, for ourselves and our generation, to keep bright the memory of our fallen comrades."

Chaplain Torrens advanced from the group of officers, and taking a bouquet of white flowers, said:

"In all his infinite mercy the Father, in whose knowledge not even a sparrow falls to the ground, has been pleased to remove from among us our comrades, who to maintain in our hearts that pure love for their memory due to such exalted patriotism and heroic death, as the symbol of the love and of the purity of our intentions in this pious ceremony, I deposit these white flowers upon these graves. May the example of their actions and the lesson of their sacrifice remain with us, and continually teach us that next to the duty we owe to the Giver of every good and perfect gift, unselfish patriotism, and manly devotion to the country which shields and protects us, are the highest attributes and surest sign of that true nobility which raises men to be but little lower than the angels, and binds upon the brow the unfadeable mark of the hero. May wisdom from on high shine into the hearts of our rulers, and so direct all their actions that the voice of the people may honor them as to-day it honors the lowly beds of the country's defenders."

The Post was then divided in detachments and decorated the graves of their departed comrades throughout the grounds, after which they took the cars and returned to the city.

AT NOROMBEGA HALL.

According to the change in the order of exercises this year, the oration was delivered at Norombega last evening, instead of at the cemetary in the afternoon, as heretofore. This change is an excellent one and will probably be adopted permanently in the future, as it is much more comfortable than sitting or standing out in the hot sun. The hall was handsomely decorated and presented a most attractive appearance. Festoons of evergreen were gracefully arranged on the front of the galleries, caught up on the gas jets where small flags were crossed, while on the walls above the galleries were placed the the corps flags. Pictures of Washington and Lincoln occupied prominent positions among the decorations, and on the stage were two stacks of guns. The hall was literally packed, the school children and Jameson Guards occupying seats on one side, members of the Grand Army in the centre and the Ladies' Relief Corps on the opposite side.

The exercises opened with a dirge by the Band followed by an eloquent prayer by Rev. Mr. Axtell. The Penobscot Quartette then sung "Nearer My God to Thee," after which the Roll of Honor was read by Adjutant Montgomery and the responses by Serg't. Major Foster, as follows:

B. H. BEALE POST 12, G. A. R.—ROLL OF HONOR AND RESPONSES.

IN MEMORIAM

BY L A P

Six years Time's waves have washed away,
Six times the buds have bloomed to flowers,
The flowers o'ertum, have met decay,
The earth been blessed with sun and showers

Since then our friendship budded, bloomed,
Nor knew decline e'en to the last.
My friend's dear form now lies entombed
Her pure soul to its God has passed

A truer heart ne er beat, I weep,
A ready smile for each and all,
A soul as pure as e er was seen
In Eden s garden ere the Fall

Her friends all loved her quiet ways,
My heart was won by them, I know,
In thinking of the by gone days,
I cannot check the tears that flow

Death loves it's prey, 'tis said, 'tis shining mars
And Pride s spirit shone so bright
He chose her that for us 'tis dark
Without that spirit's cheering light

The golden bowl all shattered lies,
The silver cord is severed now,
We raise to Heaven our tearful eyes
And to God s will we humbly bow

NOTICE TO OWNERS

OF

STATE OF MAINE
VALUATION COMMISSION,
Office April 20th, 1880.

ORDERED That I will be found in the office of all persons owning wild lands or lumber lots in the State of Maine, to make and furnish to the Valuation Commission at Augusta, on or before the 1st day of September next, true and perfect descriptions of all of them owned respectively on the 1st day of April next, stating the number of acres in each and the value of each piece or parcel, and that such notice be given to all persons liable to assessment, with the order and time of the Commission in their hands, as will be just and equal on their property in the State.

And that a copy of this order be published in all the newspapers printed in Bangor, and in the Lumberman's Gazette, Portland, for three weeks successively, the last publication to be on the first Wednesday in June next.
